LONDON Nov 19 (NYT).— At least 18 hombs concealed in letters addressed to Jewish com-panies, organizations and indi-viduals, and assumed to have been sent by the Arab Black September group, reached London and Geneva today. All were mailed from India, and one of them exploded in the hands of the managing director of a dismond company here.
Twelve other letter-bombs were

Scotland Yard said that ell the letter-bombs bore postmarks from Bombsy or New Delbi. All police forces in Britain were asked by Scotland .Yard to warn local residents not to open any suspicious envelopes Late this afternoon, hours after the letter-bombs were found, Comdr. Matthew Rodger, Scotland Yard's Special Branch operations chief, said: "I believe these were part of a consignment which have gone throughout the world. Information from Bombay indicates that the authorities there successfully intercepted something in the order of about two dozen bombs during the last 24 hours." From Black September

The police said that one of the recipients in London opened the envelope addressed to him and a slip of paper fluttered out. It said: "From the Black September." The letter failed to explode. Another explosive device was in an envelope that also contained a greeting card.

Black September, the Arab terrorist organization, is believed responsible for sending the envelope that exploded at the Israell Embassy here in September, killing Ami Shachori, the counselor for agricultural affairs.

The Israeli Embassy as well as and banks with Israeli ties vere warned today by the police against opening letters from India.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP- related facilities for doing busi-DJ).—The Nixon administration, in negotiating recently separate but similar trade agreements with the Soviet Union and Poland, has put together what in effect is a "packaged deal" that it is ready to offer to other Eastern European countries. "It's only a matter of time," said one U.S. East-West trade specialist today, "until similar agreements are worked out with Hungary, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and possibly even the Bulgarians." Having seen Moscow's attitude on such trade agreements, other stern European coutries seemingly are less hesitant about seeking talks with the U.S. on ways to expand trade and other

The Eastern European countries, including Russia, seek more favorable U.S. tariff treatment for their exports, generally the same "most-favored-nation" du-ties applicable to U.S. imports from Western countries.

Poland and Yugoslavia, among the Eastern European countries, have that now.

President Nixon has promised the Russians he will ask Congress in 1973 to approve It for them. All of the Eastern European nations also want access to U.S. Export-Import . Bank loans to help finance their purchases of U.S. goods.

The U.S. trade accords with Moscow and Warsaw cleared the way for Mr. Nixon to authorize Eximbenk loans to each of these countries, as he did several months ago for Romania. Yugoslavia has long been an eligible Eximbenk borrower.

The Soviet and Polish trade agreements also provided that U.S. businessmen would have freer access to potential buyers in each of these countries, with Both South Vietnamese parties were enjoined to "do their ut-most" to settle this and other outstanding international problems within three months of a cease-fire. But there was no formal obligation to do so in the version of the draft agreement released by Hanoi.

The Hanoi version ostensibly gives the South Vietnamese government a veto over the timing of the release of political pris-oners and detainees and indeed the open-ended possibility of de-laying their release.

However, on Oct. 30, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government, told a news conference that the States had a "respons bility" to free these prisoners.

Seen in the light of today's disclosure, Mrs. Binh appears to have been reminding the United States of its promise to have the prisoners released and indeed hinting of an official leak to that effect if Washington drag-

U.S. Aide, Thieu Confer in Saigon On Peace Terms

By Fox Butterfield

SAIGON, Nov. 10 (NYT).-Gen. Alexander M. Haig conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu for nearly two hours today amid indications that South Vietnam still has major objections to the peace settlement worked out by Hanoi and Washington.

Tin Song, the semi-official newspaper that often reflects the views of the presidential palace, said tonight that Gen. Holg had been told that any peace agreement that did not provide for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam

Gen. Haig, deputy to Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security affairs adviser, arrived in Saigon from Washington this morning, reportedly to get Mr. Thieu's agreement to new joint U.S.-South Vietnamesc terms for a peace settlement. The nine-point settlement worked out by the United States and North Vietnam does not call for North Vietnamese withdrawal and had previously been denounced by Mr. Thieu as "surrender."

But despite Tin Song's tough language, which was echoed by a broadcast on the official Saigon radio, American officials were reliably reported to be "optimistic" that Gen, Haig would soon overcome Mr. Thieu's objections. Some American officials were said to feel that Mr. Thien's demands were more bluster than substance. In Washington, well-placed administration officials said today that Gen. Haig west to Saigon with a personal letter to Mr. Thieu urging him to accept a cease-fire as soon as possible.

Gen. Haig is due back in Washington this weekend. Officials say that if his mission is successful, Mr. Kissinger could be in a position to hold a final series of negotiations on a cease-fire package in Paris late next week. "The leeberg is marching on its way," one well-placed U.S. official remarked about the peace negotiations, "and all this talk here in Saigon is not going to stop anything."

The U.S. Embassy was also reported to be less tense than when Mr. Kissinger spent five days here some two weeks ago talking

Both American and South Vietnamese officials are reported to feel that Gen. Haig's mission is more an effort to inform Mr. Thien of the new American peace terms than an attempt at complex negotiations, such as when Mr. Kissinger was here.

Gen. Haig is expected to leave Saigon either tomorrow night or Sunday, and there are no plans, informed U.S. sources say, for him to prolong his stay.

Thieu's Demands In reporting today's session at the presidential palace, which was also attended by Mr. Thieu's chief aide, Hoang Duc Nha, as well as American Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, Tin Song stressed that South Vietnam would not abide by a cease-fire unless Mr. Thieu signed it. 'No one can represent South Vietnam in signing any future peace agreements," the newspaper said Mr. Thieu had told Gen. Haig. In what some observers here took to be a possible reference to the new terms that Gen. Haig had brought with him, Tin Song added that "any token of symbolle withdrawal, such as of 14,000 North Vietnamese" in the northern part of South Vietnam, would be unacceptable.

The Saigon radio also referred to this possible token withdrawal of some North Vietnamese. "If the North Vietnamese Communists agree to make only a show of troop withdrawals, such as in this case," the radio broadcast said, "no cease-fire agreement whatsoever will be signed or approved and respected by the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1) of ships like the Inchon and Okinawa can drag a number of special devices to destroy mines. One such device, for instance, makes the kind of noise that sets off acoustical mines-mines that blow up at the sound made by certain sizes of ships.

Seventh Fleet Ships The U.S. Seventh Fleet, lying off Vietnam, has conventional mine-sweeping ships which are expected to play a rola in the clearing operation.

Precisely when the mine-sweeping task force goes to work depends on the progress in the peace negotiations with Hanol. The first mines were laid last The Navy refused to comment on the ship movements other

Europeans Fear U.S. Seeks to Break Up EEC

By Clyde H. Farnsworth

Commercial Conflict The free internal movement of goods and services between member countries has made the community into a prosperous group, which has been enlarging its membership and sphere of influence while also coming into increasing commercial conflict with the United States. Yet American interests, especially multinational enterprises, have gained enormous advantages from European integration, and European earnings are important for many of them.

Fontaine, the editor of Le Monde has put it, there are no longer any disputed frontiers on the continent. No one covets anyone

The American proposals for global free trade were made through Washington's ambassador to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which is now holding its annual meeting.

The ambassador, William Pearce, called for the conversion of all forms of farm protection into the equivalent tariff rates and for progressive elimination over 10 years of tariffs on a product-by-product basis and of all export subsidies.

The Common Market has not formally replied, but community sources in Brussels commented Integration has also contributed that the American proposals would mean a progressive loss of identity unless noncommercial integration was able to proceed successfully. To retain their identity the members of the European Economic Community are likely to resist the proposals. The recent comment of President Nixon's special adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, that 1973 will be the year of Europe has been frequently quoted here, especially since the United States elections last Tuesday. It is taken to mean that after peace in Vietnam attention must, once again, be paid to relations with this continent. Those in the Common Market's commercial-policy area quote it with some trepidation, for their fear of major clashes is real. It is expected that President Nixon will make an official visit soon

Sen. Kennedy reportedly pledged that if the team went, it would involve itself solely in humanitarian, and not in "political" matters. He is said to have promised Mr. Rogers that any information gathered concerning the condition of U.S. prisoners of war would be immediately furnished to the State Department.

Sen. Kennedy is also said to have argued that the administration should encourage -- not discourage - a bipartisan proach in Congress to the task of binding up Indochina's wounds.

By Malcolm W. Browne

VIENTIANE, Nov. 10 (IHT) .--The Laotian peace negotiations here appeared to take a significant step forward today when the Fremier, Prince Souvanna Phouma, received at his residence the ranking member of the Communist-led Pathet Lao delegation, Phoumi Vongvichit

Mr. Phoumi, generally regarded as one of the main political leaders of the Pathet Lao's de facto government, arrived here a week ago to add his weight to the peace talks. He was reported by government sources to be planning to leave here tomorrow for Hanoi en route to the Pathet Lao capital at Samueus, presumably for consultations with Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong and others.

Mr. Phoumi met in closed conference today with Prince Souvanna for one and one half hours. Spokesmen for both sides declined to say what was dis-

Depends on Vietnam

Officials of both the Pathet Lao and the Laotian government have conceded in private that progress toward a Lactian peace settlement depends on a settlement in Vietnam. Nearly all of eastern Laos is occupied by the North Vietnamese Army, and the Laotlan population of only 3.5 million is completely overshadowed by its two powerful Vietnamese neighbors. The war in Laos reportedly was being fought hard today despite the peace talks. .

Heavy fighting was reported in the town of Donghene, some 30 miles east southeast of Savannakhet, in southern Lacs. The town had been held by the North Vietnamese for the last year, but attacking Laotian government troops reportedly established a toehold there late yesterday and were fighting their way through the streets today.

Clashes and shelling were reported in northern Laos near the royal capital of Luang Prabang, and in other parts of the country.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Embassy amounced today that the charred bodies of two women found last week in the town of Kengkok, recaptured from the North Victnamese, had been positively iden-tified as those of two American missionaries.

They are Miss Evelyn Anderson and Miss Beatrice Kosin, both of the Christian Missions in Many Lands organization. The two women had been taken prisoner by North Vietnamese troops en-tering Kengkok and were tied to posts in a house that was later burned down.

An embassy spokesman said that the families of the two women had forbidden antopsies and therefore their manner of death could not be determined. Two other missionaries seized at the same time, Lloyd Dudley Oppel, a Canadian, and Samuel Mattix, an American, are still missing. Lactian villagers captured with them who subsequently escaped said that the two young men were forced to march barefoot to a village named Kham Thao for a distance of 17 miles. The two reportedly were in good condition apart from bruised and bleeding feet. A missionary spokesman portedly sought yesterday to appeal for their freedom hy talking to the Pathet Lao spokesman here in Vientiane, Soth Pethrasi. But Mr. Pethrasi reportedly declined to receive the missionaries.

By Spencer Rich

KEY BISCAYNE, Pla., Nov. 10 (WF) -- President Nixon has begun a major reassessment of the functions of all U.S. foreign policy agencies, the White House announced here today.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren told reporters that the key question is the relationship between the State Department, which deals with foreign policy only, and other hodies, like the Treasury and Commerce Departments, which deal primarily with other matters but also have influence over foreign policy ques-

"It's a review of the basic organization and relations . . . It involves organization, budget, personnel all along the line," Mr. Warren said.

He said Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs, had met with White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman "into the night" yesterday on "the for-eign policy structure." No State Department representatives were present. The three officials were part of the presidential party which flew here Wednesday for a stay of several days at the President's Key Biscayne retreat.

Broad Reassessment

The foreign policy review is part of a broader reasses of the functions of all federal agencies which Mr. Nixon has ordered to start off his second term. "The basic thing we're talking about is how to make government operate better," said

In order to give himself a free hand to realign functions and get rid of personnel unresponsive to his policies, the President has demanded that all persons holding direct presidential appointments to federal jobs, and all persons appointed to certain jobs by department and agency heads, submit pro-forms resignations. Mr. Warren said letters of resignation are not being requested of regulatory agency appointees with fixed tenures, but he helieved they are heing sought from "foreign service officers at home and abroad if appointed by

Berliners have long deplored their exclusion, but now eager campaign promoters have discovered a loophole, at least for those with a second residence in the Federal Republic; West German election laws give these persons their number is estimated to be as high as 150,000 the right to vote at the place in the Federal Republic where they are might prompt future Daniel Ellsbergs to leak government secrets to the public. But Mr. Clark's opponent, As-eistant Attorney General Roger C. Cramton, argued that courts must keep hands off classified material when the government asserts the need for absolute secrecy on national-defense information.

Justice William H. Rehnquist did not sit during the argument. He was an assistant attorney general a year ego when his staff did legal work on the congressmen's demands for classified documents about the 1971 nuclear test at Amchitka Island, Alaska.

Examination by Jurist The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that a district judge should inspect classified government papers in his chambers to see whether some information could be released to the congressmen. or whether the nonsensitive material was "inextricably intertwin-

'ed" with critical defense data. Mr. Cramton said no court had eyer issued such a ruling before, and that this one should be re-versed. Mr. Clark said the ruling was a modest one and should be affirmed.

Mr. Cramton said a recent executive order tells government officials to weed out nonsensitive material for disclosure. But he contended that court inspection of the same material is not authorized by the 1967 Freedom of Information Act.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and Potter Stewart asked whether that meant judges are forbidden to go beyond the government's mere assertion that all the Amchitka test data was sensitive. Mr. Cramton replied that he did "not see how anyone could that classified nuclear secrets are critical to national I Will Not Ouit'

By R.W. Apple Jr.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 CNYT). 25 members to the committee, The woman whom Sen. George McGovern installed as Democratic national chairman-said yesterday that she would resist mounting efforts to oust her in the wake of the party's crushing defeat in the presidential election. "Jean Westwood is alive and well and intends to remain on the job," she declared at a crowd-ed news conference. Sen, Lloyd M. Bentsen jr., D., Texas, called for the replacement of Mrs. Westwood on Wednesday, and Joseph Crangle, the party chairman in New York State and a possible successor to Mrs. Westwood, joined him res-terday. A group including Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Alexander E. Barkan, organized labor's top political operative, have been working covertly to-ward that goal for several weeks.

The conservative and moderate Democrats who want a change believe Mrs. Westwood will be unable to raise money, unable to unify the party and unable to build for the future.

But Mrs. Westwood, a former national committeewoman from national committeewoman from Utah, said she was "acceptable to the major elements of the Democratic party" and argued that she had been a practitioner of "good coalition politics" for several waste. several years.

"I refuse to be a scapegoat," she said later. Mrs. Westwood said she hoped that her opponents would not insist upon a fight, with the concomitant "bloodletting." · But if it came to that, she said, "I'm a hard vote counter, and if I have to win in that way, will. I will not quit."

Rattle Seen

Her defiant stand appeared to guarantee a battle at the committee's meeting on Dec. 9. Meanwhile, a struggle for the No. 3 position in the Democratic leadership in the House of Representatives got under way.

Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida Southern moderate, announced that he would run for the post of House majority leader against the current Democratic whip, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill jr. of Massa chusetts, who is in the formal line of succession.

The present majority leader Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisians, has been missing since Oct. 16, when his plane vanished in Alasks. He was re-elected on Alasks. He was re-elected our Thesday, and no move to choose a successor is expected until the search has ended.

Mr. Gibbons apparently hopes to win support both among congressional reformers, whom he has supported in the past, and among Southerners. He said today that he considered himself "a bridge-builder."

The fight for Mr. Bogg's job is likely to be far less divisive than mittee, with its reform-vs.-oldguard overtones.

Westwood said that she had the support of Sen. Mc-Govern, and implied that she also had the backing of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who could have a decisive voice.

But he said in an interview last week that he had not decided what to do, and he and his family have been louth in the past to involve themselves deeply in intraparty fights.

Asked why she felt she could do better job than someone else in unifying the party, she replied that she was qualified to do the job, that she had been chosen by committee and that it was not part of the party's tradition. to change chairmen after a loss. Any effort to oust Mrs. Westwood would take the form of a motion to declare her position vacant at the Dec. 9 meeting. The meeting was called to add

Six months later, the rancher, Richmond C. Harper, 48, was arrested with eight other men on charges of conspiring to smuggle 10,000 weapons into Mexico in exchange for 25 kilograms of heroin. The rancher was released on $25,000 bail and the case is now being heard by a grand jury in New Orleans.

Mr. Ambrose spent two nights last December on Mr. Harper's ranch, on the Mexican side of the border near Eagle Pass, Texas, one year after customs officials had begun to investigate Mr. Harper and two months after they had intercepted a shipment of Hong Kong merchandise sent by Mr. Harper into Mexico.

This information came to light as a result of an investigation by The New York Times.

"This is not the NATO position," said Mr. Luns. He said that for NATO, "results in Helsinki will determine whether we go on." Mr. Luns said that France was "partially right" in its opposition to MBFR, and said that even tha United States "was not the keenest government" supporting MBFR. He said that a lack of success in the MBFR talks could have a "disastrous effect on public opinion,". Mr. Luns, never known for his enthusiasm for the MBFR talks but convinced that they represent a better approach than a unilateral U.S. troop withdrawal, said that the talks would be limited, on the Western side, to those governments having forces in West Germany." But he said the NATO "flank" countries would be present and "allowed to give their views."

Commenting on President Nix-on's re-election. Mr. Luns said that Europeans were "extremely relieved" over the outcome of the U.S. voting. He said a principal reason for this was Mr. Nixon's commitment not to withdraw U.S. forces from Europe "except in an MBFR context."

Foresces Nixon Visit

On the reports from Washington that Mr. Nixon would visit Europe in February or March, Mr. Luns said, "I expect he will visit NATO."

Mr. Luns said that the West is going into the security con-ference in hopes of obtaining concrete results in the negotiations with the Communist bloc. He said this should include "confidence-building" measures such as advance warning for troop maneuvers and also a declaration of intentions that would involve Soviet acceptance of "free movement of people, ideas and in-

Mr. Nixon's Great Victory

We congratulate Mr. Nixon on his political masterpisce—a singular personal triumph which gives him more than a little license to claim unqualified vindication both for past defeats and for present performance from an extraordinarily broad spectrum, regionally and in terms of party, age, and race. His new American majority, never mind how durable or tightly gived together it may turn out to be, did the job he asked of it and did it handsomely. That said, it should come as no secret that we would have welcomed somewhat less vindication of Mr. Nixon, or at best vindication of a less sweeping nature. Putting it another way, we would have been heartened by a little more restraint and sslectivity, in the message that poursd in from the vots for President Tussday night. We would not argue that it is not Mr. Nixon's right to make of such a "mandate" what he will. But the scope of his support and its tack of focus, when taken together with the second-level returns in the contests for Congress and for governorships, and with the President's own campaign stratsgy, do not tell us nearly enough in any conclusive way about what it is the President now has this broad new "mandate" to do or not to do-about just what was being deplored and what was being

Was it, in the case of Vietnam, the President's promise of "peace" almost any minute now-or his tough emphasis on "no surrender"? Was it the sensible welfare reform program he had proposed to Congress, or ths fact that he abandoned it in favor of a crude attack on welfare "chiselers"? Was it his relentless concentration on "antibusing"-or his regular protestations of his dedication to racial non-discrimination and squal rights and job opportunities for blacks? Did most voters know of the excssses and improprieties and sven alleged illegalities in his campaign—or did they know, but not believe it, or simply not care? Without knowing what message was really getting through, it is hard to know at this point exactly what messages were being sent

The answers, we suspect, will only be apparent over time. So we will forgo instant analyses, except as to one or two conclusions that seem to us to be inescapable. It would. for example, be a mistake to do the easy. political thing, as it were, and explain it all away in terms of the lameness of the challenge that was raised. This entered into Tussday's landslids, no doubt; but it is not enough to account for it as a vote against Sen. McGovern, or his particular policies; it is only fair to infer that, in a quite positive way, peopls in hugs numbers, and all across the country, like things pretty much as they ars. .

For our part, ws do not share the popular complacency, and still less a sense that ths President's record entitled him to anything liks so wholesale and seemingly indiscriminate a vots of confidence. We see in the totality of Tuesday's returns persuasive evidencs of something less than a readiness on the part of the voters to give the President and his party the sort of seal of approval that enabled Franklin D, Roosevelt and Lyndon B. Johnson, in comparable landslides, to sweep their party along with

And beyond that, we see in Mr. Nixon's "mandate" an opportunity for him to maks a virtue of its ambiguity-to draw from it the support he needs to pursue his worthy quest for "a generation of peacs" in the world, and to find in it reinforcement for a redirection of his energies and the nation's resources to the urgent problems that await the issues of European unity. The nine nations of the expanded Common Market have to decids whether to try to control it together or, instead, to save themselves separately. So far they have chosen, in principle, to stick together. Agreements in principle are not everything. But they are a good deal better than disagreements in principle. For a time, during the summer, it looked as though the nine governments might not even manage to hold the Paris meeting scheduled for mid-October. But the meeting was in fact held, and it went considerably beyond the merely routine originally in prospect. Two weeks later the Nine's finance ministers met in Luxembourg to do battle directly with the dragon, inflation.

There the Nine set themselves the goal of holding price inflation down to 4 percent in 1973, compared with the current rate of 62 percent, (In the United States, the administration's current target is a rate of 2 to 3 percent by the end of this year, and the actual riss over the past year has been 33 percent.) Having established this standard, the Europeans then set out a number of rules for achieving it. Some are very general, and there are large exceptions to others. But all of them affect intimately the domestic growth rates and employment levels of the member nations. They have taken the pledge at a moment when three of the present six members are very close to national elections. The Garmans vots a week from Sunday. The Dutch, with the highest Infinition rate in Europe at 7.5 percent, votc on Nov. 29. The French will vote carly next year. These governments, under the pressure of the campaigns, sesm to think that Inflation is, once again, forcing forward European solutions will be helpful at the polls. That in itself is a good omen. Controlling inflation is, in immediate > terms, a matter of technical economic management. The present and future members of the Common Market, in Paris, pointed their enterprise once again toward much broader purposes. True, there are a number of unbridged disparities between the Paris declaration and present reality. At Paris the Nine called for fixed currency exchange rates, with the British pound floating. They called for the development of world trade, at a time when most of them are urgently seeking to cut down the flood of highly competitive Japanese exports. They called for tronger institutions of the Common Market although the Paris meeting itself was nearly scuttled in a parochial quarrel over the location of a political secretariat. No one can know whether the promises of ths Paris declaration will be carried out. But it seems clear that the Europeans have achieved a certain momentum to override the quarrels and technical divisions. The striking thing about the declaration is that it chose to go far beyond the customary preoccupations of trade and finance. "Economic expansion is not an end in itself," the Nine sald. "Its first aim should be to enable disparities in living conditions to be reduced . . . It should result in an improvement in the quality of life as well as standards of living. As befits the genius of Europe, particular attention will be given to intangible values and to protecting the environment, so that progress may really be put at this service of mankind." For those engaged in the grubby and sxasperating business of fitting together numbers and intsrests in nine different currencies, this touch of idealism might prove encouraging. THE WASHINGTON POST.

The Tico Germanys

What kind of agreement is it which has been reached between East and West Germany? Will the Berlin Wall fall? Will the minefields blocking free movement between Germans be eliminated so that psople can get across the now-dsadly frontier, as inhabitants of states in the normal world

The aims of today's concept of "normalization" are not that high, The slight liberalizations of movement which have been achieved serve as a reminder of how unspeakably

Some possibilities of visits and sxchanges opened up-undsr strict government control-but basically ths peopls of East Germany remain encapsulated. This does not devalue the agreement, but It relativizes its importance. What has in fact taken place is a shift in the West's German policy, to the point where it has moved much closer to the long-standing demands of Soviet policy. NEW YORK,—In reorganiz-ing the cabinet and the White House staff for his second term, President Nixon is confronted with a number of critical questions and conflicting ambitions. He may even have to trade in a efficiency for a little laughter,

For example, what role to assign Vice-President Agnew? Whether to bring John Comnally back to Washington in soms highly visible post? And what if anything to do with Eiliot Richardson, who, like Agnew and Connally, is said to have presidential

What Nixon does about these things will obviously have considerable bearing on his relations with the Congress, whose committee chairmen have resented the domination of the first term by White House staff officers who on than most cabinet members but were not available for questioning on Capitol Hill. And his decisions now will obviously influence the political future of the men who would like to succeed

For example, after his own first term as Vice-President, Nixon hoped in 1957 to be relieved of some of his responsibilities as principal spokesman of the Republican party, a role he felt made him unnecessarily con-

A New Role

Instead, he hoped then to be assigned more important if less visible duties as sort of a first executive assistant to the President, with specific authority for seeing that the President's decisions in the National Security Cooncil were faithfully and efficlently carried out by the depart-

This proposal was not received with much enthusiasm by Sherman Adams, who was Ike's chief of staff in the White House and it was never put into effect. But now it is Agnew who is trying to appear a little less partisan, a little less controversial and therefore a little more presidential.

No doubt the Vice-President would welcome relief from the rubber chicken circuit and his donothing role in the Senate and trads them for a chance for some quiet on-the-job training for the presidency. Only the President. of course, can decide whether to enhance his power and position, and what if anything he does about this will indicate what future Nixon sees for Agnew.

The Connally situation is a little more complicated. The Texan is not the sort you would hand your hat to by mistake. He is a big man in a world of pygmies, and he is unencumbered by modesty, but he played his role as Nixoo's house Democrat in the campaign with such energy and venomous relish that it is hard to imagine the Democrats putting their light in the window for him

'New Majority'

Nixon, however, is still enamored of the notion of building a "new majority" of enlightened pregnatists, and Connaily would give the second term something of a bipartisan look and also help him with the Democrats in Congress, who rather like Connally's brassy informality,

One awkward detail is that Connally would like to be secretary of state, and the difficulty here is that the day he walks in the front door of the State Dewalk out the back door of the team?" and went on to pick White House, and the President might not regard this as a very good bargain. Connally could, of course, replace Mel Laird at the Pentagon, where he has already served as secretary of the Navy, or he might just sit it out in Texas for a while and later try to take over ths wreckage of the Democratic party and fight it out with Teddy Kennedy for the Democratic nomination. This would be a bull-fight. of spectacular proportions. Elliot Richardson is a handsome Harvard type that is rather out of fashion at the moment, but he was a good under secretary of state, has managed to get some control over HEW, a formidable achievement, and if the President decides to revive the State Department, now slowly dying of neglect and malnutrition, Richwithout losing the friendship of Henry.

Of course, it is not inconceivable that Kissinger might get his cease-fire in Vietnam and resign. After the last four years, he has nowhere to go but down. And he has always said that nobody could really do that job well for more than a coupls of years, though he started saying it four years

Nevertheless, though the President started his campaign by asking, "Why break up a winning Agnew and clobber the Democrats, there is a lot to be said for giving the second term a new look a new tone, and a new infusion of energy and ideas.

Loyal Little Band

No administration in recent memory has worked harder under such external pressures, foreign and political, and in such a tense and constricted atmosphere. than Nixon and his little band of loyal associates. But they almost seem to have regarded the White House as a stockade under slege. The cost of all this on the men in the engine of the White House has undoubtedly been repaid by victory, but the cost to their personal lives and their families must be considerable.

Maybe the landslide has begun to soften all this. In four years, ws have not had a free or open discussion out of these tense men in the White House, Kissinger excented, about the problems of the republic. No suggestion of misikes, no self-mockery, not even a giggle or a single good joke.

. But now all the tense hard work has paid off, and the President feels vindicated and is calling for change. It is a hopeful sign: With a sense of history and a sense of humor, as Kissinger has demonstrated, much can still

Uganda and Racism

By Hilary Ng'weno

NAIROBI, Kenya.—There are no military government of Ugand simple moral answers to the question of the plight of Asians currently being evicted from Uganda, Certainly, President Idi problems Uganda is faced with Amin and his military government are exhibiting a racism toward Asians which makes nonsense of much of Africa's righteous stand against the racist white minority governments of southern Africa. There are grounds for genuine concern for the safety of any Asians left in Uganda.

Yet it is hypocritical of the world to try and look at this problem in isolation from its historical international implications. The fate of British Asians in East Africa was put in jeopardy flist not by anything any African gov-ernment did but by the cumulative decisions of various British governments, starting with racially discriminatory colonial laws which placed the economies of East African nations into foreign, essentially Asian hands, and ending with the disgraceful passage by the British Labor government in 1968 of a law barring the entry of nonwhite British citizens into Britain.

Admittedly the British in their racism have not been as crude as President Amin and his soldiers. They have not rounded up the Asians in their midst, dispossessed them, abused them, stripped them of their dignity and threatened their very lives. But then it has not been necessary. It has all been done for them by the Ugandans.

Rate of Entry

It is pointless for Britain to try and remind Uganda of her re-sponsibilities to Ugandan residents, whether citizens or not, when Britain herself has in the last five years been busy trying to evade her own responsibilities toward British citizens. Altogether there are still mors than 100,000 British citizens of Asian origin in East Africa. The British government, until the Uganda crisis, had insisted on taking them into Britain at the rate of three thousand entry vouchers a year. Even assuming that each voucher repre-sented five entries, this would mean that it would take more than seven years for all British Asians in East Africa to be absorbed into Britain. A convenient timetable for Britain, but hardly one which took into consideration any of the wishes of the East African nations concerned. And a timetable which was in effect a unilateral British interference in Fast African affairs. For what Britain was telling East African "Sorry, old governments was: chaps; ws know the Asians are our problem, but you've got to take care of them until we are ready to take care of them and that may not be for another seven or so years." Given such arrogance on the part of Britain, it is a wonder that no crisis in relations between Britain and her former East African territories erupted earlier than the current Uganda crisis. For this the British and the world can thank not the statesmanship of British leaders but rather the maturity and patience of the governments of Kenya and Tanzania.

Odd Men Out

The real tragedy of Uganda is not the Asian problem, for that is Britain's tragedy rather than Uganda's. The real tragedy is that President Amin has been able in a very short time to unpent-up racist feelings among the public which observers of the Ugandan scene had thought were desd and gone. Change in Chile

Lewis H. Diuguid's articl "Allende After Two Years: I Violent Gulf" (IHT Nov. 8), de picts the surface disturbances of Chilean politics while ignorin the deep and conflicting current that cause these disturbance The underlying clash is between the status quo and change.

What was the status quo tw years ago, at President Allende ?... election? My view is that one third of Chile's children suffered ... brain damage from malnutrition nearly one-fifth of adults wer illiterate and over two-thirds c high school age youths had n opportunity for education, hal the cultivatable land belonged t a very tiny percentage of th population, the major hard-cur rency - earning industries wer foreign-dominated, and a medicombine owned by a single wealthy family accounted for ore half of newspaper circulation,

Allende's attempts to ch this unjust-and therefore unacceptable-situation have indeed met with increasingly violent resistance. However, the question is not whether "Allende. . . must accept a largs share of responsibility for this trend," as Mr Diuguid concludes, but whether such a trend is not inevitable whsn the forces of change attempt to dismantle-even legally-the privileged fortress of those with a vested interest in injustice. -

'A Profit Society'

By Heinrich Böll

DORTMUND, West Germany.-Much has been said in recent years in this country about violence in connection with problems of domestic security. A lot of violence has also become visible, and there has been a tacit only the one kind, the visible: bombs, pistols, clubs, stones, water cannons and tear-gas gre-

I want to speak about other forces and another violence, against which the Social-Liberal coalition has attained what it bas attained, against the massive publishing violence of several press concerns burdened by a from slander. If only the coalition had as great a percentage of the press behind it in fair criticism and democratic loyalty as it had election votes!

Undefined Violence

On a recommendation of the Christian Democratic Union economic council, they tried to put pressure on the newspapers and magazines by the simple method of withdrawing ads from them. You can imagine what kind of violencs lies behind this influence on certain publications. So you see there is not only violence on the streets-violence in bombs, pisiols, clubs and stones there is also violence and force deposited in the bank and iraded on the stock market,

A further kind of violence against which you have to carry out your policy is the ingrained, almost inborn feeling of many citizens of this state for whom the Social Democrats were all right as the opposition but for whom it was a kind of coup d'état, or at least a considerable shamelessness, that you came to partment, Henry Kissinger would govern. You also had to govern against an almost uncontrollable violence that I do not want to denounce as long as I cannot define it. Even if it were true that certain profits-and profit doesn't only mean money have played a role with this or that deputy, it shouldn't surprise anybody in a society whose daily prayer, whose educational essence concerns profits, gains, increased turnover, promotions and new records. Yes, some people can order their conscien watch out for their profits.

These violences which I have just hinted at bere are to me a problem of domestic security. A couple of years ago—a little too early, as it turned out—the post-war era was declared over. It was very likely forgotten that a phase of blind and brutal reconstruction could also have ended What we need now is a phase of corrections for humans, for landscapes, for the elements of water, air and earth-corrections, possibly, too, for that over-exercised instrument, conscience, which can also be synchronized for profit. What kind of and how many kinds of violence are hidden in and behind a profit society? I leave it to the philosophers and philologists to find out and reveal one day what could have been Christian in this.

Property Obliges

And how much that makes life worth while is delayed, deformed, falsified through all these forces that command our daily existence? What kind of devaluation of life takes place when you sow speed on the roads and harvest death-and violence against objects, when it improves production? You can imagine the conflicts remaining before us.

I know a very good slogan for the next CDU convention, a quote from the constitution: "property obliges" ... And to what does property oblige? To more and much more and still more proper-

I would like to know how this billboard Christian social reformism is going to muddle between promises of progress on the one side and promises of stability on the other. In this paradise it appears everything is going to rise wages, the stock dividends, the community expenditures, the social welfare outlays, even the funds spent on armaments. Everything will rise, only the prices would remain stable and the mark hard and firm.

There wouldn't be the least conflict of interests and therefore no violence. And when we are all a total society of the inde-pendently wealthy at last, who is going to work then for the interest from which we are supposed to live? I take it the two brothers, the little Fritzchen and the tiny little Fritzchen, are setting the pace in the treadmill and still believe in equal opportunity. I don't wish our chan-cellor the role of spectator of this paradise. He is needed to prevent violence, the one kind as well as the other, to guarantee peace, to prevent that a party personally as well as in its program takes over power.

I speak in the name of the Social Democratic voter initiative which consists of several hundred groups and thousands of voluntary belpers who are doing every thing possible to continue a second Brandt government. These initiatives must be made by citizens who are shocked by the financial extravagance mobilized against them and recognize wha is at stake: the transition from an entrepreneur to an employed society, from a prejudiced to ar enlightened society.

Heinrich Böll, winner of the Nobel Prize for literature, recently made these remarks to the Social Democratic party. Thi translated version is from The New York Times special feature

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) .-An American shoe merchant who admitted making bomb threats against the liner Queen Eliza-beth 2 and American Airlines was sentenced today to a tentative 20-year prison term. It can be reduced after a report on a 90-day psychiatric study.

Nenni Wants Socialists to Join Coalition

Sees Polarization As the Alternative

GENOA, Nov. 10 (Reuters) -Veteran Socialist statesman Pietro Nenni today urged his party to prepare to rejoin Italy's biggest party, the Christian Democrats, in a new coalition govern-

The 81-year-old former party leader was given a standing ovation at the Socialist party congress here when he demanded that the congress declare its read-iness to renew collaboration with the Christian Democrats.

The 10-year center-left alliance, which presided over Italian economic recovery of the 1980s, col-lapsed early this year and was replaced after the May general election by a center government of Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Liberals.

Mr. Nenni said that renewed collaboration with the Christian Democrats must, bowever, come out of a political battle against the center government to halt the country's swing to the right. He warned that the present government would inevitably lead to a polarization of Italian politic

-a two-party system dominated by the Christian Democrats on the right and the Communists on the left. It would end by splitting Italian society in two and favoring the country's neo-Fascist movement, he said. A large group of the Socialist party, headed by party secretary Giacomo Mancini, opposes Mr. Nenni's position and believes that the time is not yet ripe for an approach to the Christian Democrats, because the Socialists would be obliged to capituiste to the ruling party's demands.

In this way we would be able to fully develop the wide range of vacation activities possible in Portugal, and, at the same time, satisfy the Tourist's desire for a change of scene. Today we have extensive property holdings which belong to thousands of Portuguese shoreholders locoted in the Algorve, in Troio, in the Alentejo and in the Serro da Estrelo. With these holdings we con offer holidoys in the country or by the seo. We ore now beginning extensive promotion plans to attract a larger audience of affluent Tourists.

TORRALTA/Tourism: Year 5

We believe Tourism must serve every interest of today's Tourist to be completely successful. That's why we developed a variety of vacation areas which now offer everything a Tourist night enjoy during every vacation season. Portugal's popu-Jority os a Touristic center has proven our ideos sound ond provided omple reward for our initiotive.

TORRALTA/Tourism: Year 4 Our fourth year of existence was marked by the beginning of a touristic venture in Troio which turned this mognificent peninsula, with thirty kilometers of beaches, into an international Tourism center. We were carrying out our original plan to expand tourism into many diverse geographical locations. This outamaticolly increased the tourists' vacotion options and insured year-round Tourism for Portugal . . . from sand to snow. This proves we are an enterprise which believes in bringing the promised success of the future to the reolity of the present.

TORRALTA/Tourism: Year 3 From the beginning we knew that although the climate, the sun and the beauty of the natural surroundings were essential, they alone would not insure the successful promotion of a National Tourism which would outlive its rate of growth and satisfy the tourists' increasing demands. Our enterprise, which affers a way of vacationing that is diverse and accommodates many interests, reflects that philosophy. As o growing touristic enterprise, ready to face the future, we destroyed tediousness, Tourism's worst enemy.

TORRALTA/Tourism: Year 2

To extend the benefits to the greatest number of people and enlarge our basis of support, we introduced unusual promotional plans in Portugal which rapidly became successful. This initial success has been consolidated throughout the years, but in 1968, it was, for us, the guarantee that we would attain our proposed social aim.

TORRALTA/Tourism: Year

This was the year we decided international tourism would offer great economic odvantages to a wide spectrum of Portuguese citizens. After several important years of planning, we began to put our original ideas to work: first, the organization of a touristic enterprise which, in the shortest possible period of time, would improve and enhance the existing Notional Tourism, thereby putting us into competition on the international market. In 1967 we begon to grow.

When 'Unique' Means Something

By Souren Melikian DARIS, Nov. 10 (IHT) -There may be other fine cales of Art Déco hut they will not match the one of objects from the collection of the late conturier Jacques Doucet held Wednesday at the Hôtel Drouot, Paris.

The 55 lots ranged from a woodbiock made after a Picasso work by a now-forgotten engraver, Georges Auber, (1,050 francs to a slightly moth-eaten panther hide (680 francs). All came from the Studio Saint-James in Neuilly, the house built and furnished by Mr. Doucet, a high-fashion leader who dominated the art scene during his

He discerned the best in almost every field. His collection of Pereign miniatures and Japanese art was superb. As for furniture, his early taste ran to 18th-century commodes and fauteuils. Then, suddenly, he turned to modern art, influenced by the surrealist icader André Breton whom he hired to help him set up an art reference library and advise him on acquisitions.

Doucet did more than simply buy. He had a decisive influence on the major trends of the twenties, Breton was immersed in African art and cubism and, through him, designers such as Pierre Legrain hecame interested in these field. Thus, when com-

Creative Design

What was offered for sale Wednesday was the best of the decorative arts as seen by the great creators of the twenties. The stools by Pierre Legrain and a round table by Eileen Gray match, in furniture, what Picasso and Braque were doing in painting. If the phrase "creative design" is ever justified, it should obviously be applied to Mr. Doucet's collection.

Prices were, most of the time, three times what the experts had estimated (in the case of Legrain, 10 times) because museum curators and top collectors were more nware of the importance of these objects than the dealers.

Professionals were startled from the beginning when a watercolor by Francis Picabia (1979-1953) was knocked down at 144,870 francs, four or five times the most optimistic estimate. But, it should be added, the picture was framed by Rose Adler in a frame which looked like a butterfly case with four butterflies pinned on it. This was the essence of the surrealist touch in the decorative arts and, as such, just as import-ant as a great work by a great that was being auctioned. History intruded again when a big African head from the Pahouin area in Gabon came up a few minutes later and reached the unheard-of price of 86,300 francs, quadrupling the estimate of Jean Roudillon, the expert in primitive art. This head had first been in Paul-Guillaume's collection a collection familiar to the cubists-and probably was the one which inspired the poet Apollinaire to write in 1918 that "an African head in Doucet's collection compares well with fine

Some of the most expensive works at auction were those that carried the stamp of the cubist interpretation of African art.

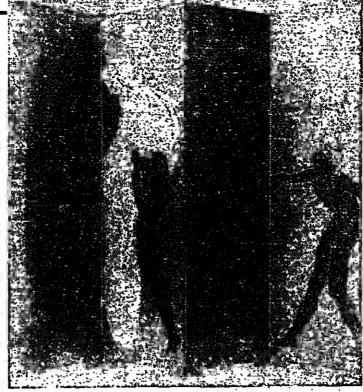

Gustave Millos, a major master until recently underrated. made two animal-shaped andirons cast in the lost wax pro-cess by Valsuani in 1925 and they made 46,220 francs, well over the price of very good 18th-century andirons. The Metropolitan Museum of Art bought a stool by Legrain which looked like a ritual object from Africa reinterpreted by an abstract sculp-tor. The price was 21,450 france, Sidney Lewis followed suit a few lots later with another stool and paid 24,700 francs. The best was cornered by a French col-lector for 43,400 francs; the Metropolitan was the under-

The most expensive piece, at 187,570 francs, was a four-leaf lacquer screen made by Elleen Gray. This early creation was by the Irish-born designer, who started as a restorer of lacquer work and moved to Paris in 1907. Here she worked with a Japanese craftsman and helped make the Japanese influence felt in post-World War I creations. Again, the screen was a histor-ical piece.

Although Wednesday's sale was unique, I feel that it will have impact on the future direction of the market. In Paris, it more obvious than ever that Art Déco has earned the 'a-

German Opera

"Elisabeth Tudor," a new opera hy the German composer Wolfgang Fortner, will have its first Swiss performance Nov. 11 at the Zurich Opera under the musical leadership of Ferdinand Leitner, staged by Imo Moszkowicz and designed by Toni Busin-ger. The principal parts of Queen Elizabeth and Mary Stuart will be sung by Hildegard Hillebrecht and Ellen Kunz, and others in the cast are Roland Hermann, Howard Nelson, Ticho Parly and Jozsef Dene. The work had its world premiere last month in Berlin.

established the influence of scholarship on the market. Literally every object had been featured in scholarly studies such as Yvonne Brunhammer's catalogue of the Musée des Arts Décoratifs 1966 Art Déco exhibi-

The catalogue, written by Jean Pierre Camard, one of Europe's leading connelsseurs, leaned heavily on books written by Yvonne Brunhammer, currently considered the leading specialist in the field. The auction further revealed Lucien Solanet as a great auctioneer: His technique is animated but he does not give the bidder the feeling that he is being pushed

Finally, the auction showed that Paris can bring off such a mard's British-born associate, in the room to welcome the English-speaking visitors, The preliminary work—sending out catalogues, contacting collectors, etc .- was carried out to perfecthe auction the success of the

The highest price ever paid in France for a Chinese objet d'art was registered today at the Hotel Drouot when an anonymous bidder offered 1,160,000 francs for a Chia Ching (1622-66) vase. Set in what appeared to be a 19th-century ormolu mounting, the wase was not in perfect condition. Its size (31 centimeters high) made it unique its category. Competition in the hidding seemed to be sale. It was a fine idea to have among European middleman act-expert Lyone Thornton, Ca- ing on behalf of Japanese collectors. It seems certain that the vase will eventually go to a private foundation in Tokyo. It was auctioned during a saic of Eastern and Far Eastern objets dart by R. ## PARIS, Nov. 10 (IHT) .- Fashion is not what it used to benor, for that matter, are fashion

This is clear at the exhibition Tilustrateurs des Modes et Manières en 1935" (to Jan. 15)—an attractive display of fashion art in the twenties at the Galerie du Luxembourg, 98 Rue Saint-Denis, Paris 1. The exhibition was put together with gousehes collocted from a number of such magazines as Vogue, Harper's Bazear and also from some beautifully old-fashioned ones such as "La Gazette du Bon Ton" and "Le Journal des Dames et des Modes." Many private collectors also lent a hand.

By Hebe Dorsey

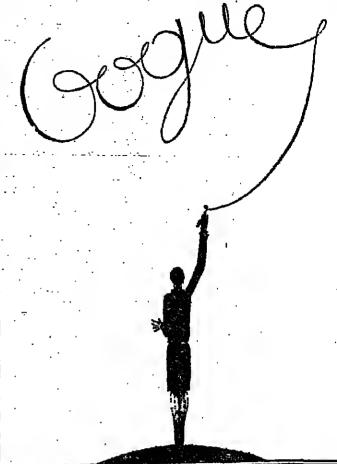

The exhibition is a subtle mixture of typical 1925 paraphernalia (flappers swooning under full moons) and more interesting cubist and abstract art. Among the artists whose works are on display are Georges Lepape, André Marty, Edouard Halouze, Lucien Laforge and Romain de. Tirtoff, better known as Erté.

Erté, whose career has caught its second wind has current exhibitions in Paris, London and will soon have shows in New York and Geneva. He says: "The mood today may be 1925, but the quality has dropped sharply."

In the twenties, the coutu riers often collaborated with first-rate artists. Glacometti designed buttons for Schiaparelli (which. by the way, she could not sell on her dresses because they cost too much). Sonia Delaunay often worked on couture fabrics. The late Jacques Heim was respon-sible for the first fun furs, with cubist motifs. Georges Lepape helped Poiret design the culotte

Illustrations

The same artistic effort could be sound in the fashion magasines whose editors called on tamous artists for illustrations. "For one thing, there were no photographs," Erté noted. "Tha whole magazine was illustrated and the level was so high that many people collected them as 1928 Vogue cover by Georges Lepape.

Today, with the photographs, fashion magazines all look aliks and monotonous," Erté added. "Look at the covers—all the same. just a big woman's head. Whereas in those days, each new cover was an event." (Erté worked on Harper's Bazaar for 20 years.)

Fashionable Arts of the 1920s

Another thing that changed with the times is the role of the advertisement "that has cheap-ened the whole look," Erte said. "In those days, there were little ads and they were strictly controlled. They appeared at the beginning and at the end of the book, and that was that. Now, the margin between editorial; advertising is much slimmer It was also much easier to what a dress looked like in th days. Now, the pictures, with models often moving, are n important than the dresses.

One of the most interes items in the exhibition is a of super-catalogue, made by Poiret for his clients, which h more like an expensive art b The last few pages, devoted "Celles de Demain" for fu fashion) include the first pan suggested by artist Lepape

This past spring at the Incontri Internazionali Gallery in Beuys spoke tirelessly about his ideas: of how he saw science as rationalized chaos, of freedom which must grow from the creativity of the individual "Man must bring everything of himself into play," he said. "Art the only revolutionary force," he said repeatedly.

Wearing his ever-present hat, he drew a system of his phrases into a schema, pointing to his hypnotic chart and talking intensively. He seemed both teacher

At the opening of his show at the Attico, Beuys walked among the guests, reading, in a steady tone, from a novel about the German enlightenment written in 1865 by Carl Richter, who, like Beuys, was born in Cleve near

The show includes artfully aged photographs of most of Beuys's happenings, mounted in metal cases under glass; many of the photographs are stamped with his seal made up of various sym-

In the center of the gallery, next to a cassette which replays

Benys's reading of Richter's text, some slabs of wax lia in a heap next to a small can full of machine oil. One does not have to understand the meaning of this assemblage to find it obscurely moving. Leaflets saying that Beuys has lost his job as professor at the Art Academy of Düsseldorf, where he was once a student and where he has taught since 1961, are on a table awaiting signatures of protest.

800 Students

Bettys lost his post this fall because he agreed to teach 800 students in spite of an academy rulling that no teacher could take on more than 200. Later, after disturbances in which his etudents occupied a classroom, he was barred from teaching in any official art academy in Germany.

Courbet helped pull down tha Vendôme column and went to prison for it, but in his painting he went on contemplating the world before him in a traditional way. Dix witnessed and record horror but remained within the limits of traditional aesthetics.

What makes Beuys and younger artists today quite different and directly polltical is that beyond "irritating, annoying, stimulating" as all "new composition" must be, as Gertrude Stein said, and beyond creating salable art objects, they use public acts and their own bodies as example and

Nostalgia Edging Out Originality in New Plays

LONDON, NOV. 10 CHT).-There used to be a little song with a chorus that went something like: "I was looking back to see if you were looking back to see if I was looking back to see if you were there." No doubt London theater managements and producers will recognize it as their tune, with a hey-nonny-no and a tinkle of cash at the box office. The theme song of a season suffused with, and suffocating under, nostalgia. The audience is still there, looking back, but it's getting to be an older eudience, and it's not my sentiment, exactly. It has not been a bad week-a good musical, a moderate musical, a good play, a good revival especially in the context of recent openings. But it is not an original time. Where are the new telents? Where are the new writers? "I and Albert" at the Piccadilly celebrates Queen Victoria's first 60 years. It is a thoroughly entertaining musical, performed with a great deal of zest and written with intelligence and wit by Jay Allen (book). Charles Strouse (music), and Les Adams (lyrics), and superlatively staged by John Schlesinger, who brings to it the chematic virtues of pace and an intensely visual

The show has that high professional gloss that comes from the combination of hard work and creative minds. It is always beautiful to look at, with Luciana Arright's simple setting that shows off the brilliant back projections of Victorian engravings, (Alan Barrett's coshum with their use of cross-hatching and scribbles, carry through this picture-book feeling.)

Truth, Not Fact

With an acherence to historical truth rather than fact, the authors and director eleverly encapsulate events, putting Victoria's courtships into a ballroom sequence, and superbly suggesting her grief at Albert's death and withdrawal from the world within the compass of one song, "Draw the Blinds," in which the diminutive far-away figure of Victoria is engulfed in a succession of swirling curtains. Best of all is Lewis Fiander's showstopping performance as Disraeli, dazzling the queen with a succession of conjuring tricks. Here, too, Mr. Schlesinger's endless inventiveness is evident for, just as the number appears to be over, Mr. Fiander wrings a final laugh from the andience by producing from nowhere a cane. There is plenty of this unex-pected wit. Mr. Schlesinger cunningly takes advantage of the Way the furniture slides mechanically on and off stage by giving us a love duet between Albert and Victoria working away at desks which are a long way apart and gradually come together.

Polly James, rarely off the stage for three hours, gives a sarkable performance as Victoria, ranging from an excited girl skipping lightly round Lord Melbourne to a crotchety old lady. Aubrey Woods provides showstoppers both as Lord Palmerston, in his song-and-dance "His Royal Highness," and as Gladatone reduced to silence by his obsessive chewing of sandwiches while Mr. Fiander doubles as skilfully as Melbourne and Disraeli.

Yet, for all that, the show has no dramatic point. Its attempts to show a wider society than the royal court with scenes in a prison, in the Crimes, and in the empire with a setting of Kipling's "The Widow at Windsor." are no more than well-staged irrelevancies.

The second act attempts to cover 40 years-mainly, I suspect, so that Sven-Bertil Taube as Albert does not die before tha interval—and falls apart halfway through before ending on an anti-climax with a botched diamond jubilee and the musical's weakest song "Go It, Old Girl!" The authors, engrossed in their task of covering so much in so little time, lose control of the material and, having suggested the complexities of the young Victoria, let her become on uninteresting old woman. Her last spark is a touching song, after Albert's death, "No One to Call

If the show is finally a disappointment, nothing more than a succession of lantern slides, however magical, it is at this timewith "Applause" still to openthe best musical in town,

Edna O'Brien's "A Pagan Place" at the Royal Court is situated smack in the middle of the Celtic twilight, with reminiscences of a poor Irish family: a drunken father, a dissatisfied mother trying to do ber duty, a young girl growing to maturity, an older one attempting to escape and failing. Everyone knocks against the hard corners of life and is domaged, yet they are recalled, for all their brutalities, with affection, a feeling echoed in Sean Kenny's set that mixes fragile promisingly sharp shopes. This misty memory play is delicately directed by Ronald Eyre, and convincingly acted, particularly by Veronica Quilligan as the young girl, David Burke as ber father, and Dave Allen as the village doctor in love with her mother and unhappily married to

by a couple of years. Tim Rice's slangy lyrics, forever seeking out the banal ("Joseph. I'll see you rot in jail, the things you have done are beyond the pale") sound well in this unserious setting and Mr. Lloyd Webber's music, aasiduously aping older musicals, is bright and bouncy. The highspot is Gordon Waller's performance as

At the Shaw Theatre, there is a revival of two Tom Stoppard plays, "After Magritte" and "The Real Inspector Hound," Both were better done the first time pround, the former of the Ambiance Lunchtime Theatre, and the latter in the West End four years ago, but they still make an excellent double-bill of Stoppard's damlingly ingenious games with language.

"After Magritte" suffers from Paul Hill's ponderous direction and John Bluthal's mannered performance as Inspector Foot ("Foot of the Yard"). But it is hard to resist a play that begins with an improbable tableau—an old lody stretched out on on ironing board, a man dressed in rubber standing on a table blowing into a lamp-and proceeds. quite logically, to an even madder vision that has a barefooted policeman wearing a sock on one hand and holding a banana in "The Real Inspector Hound" demolishes the classic English whodunit as well as pulling out the rug from under theater critics. Mr. Bluthal is much funnier here as the critic who leaves his safe seat to become involved in the play. # Japan Agency Says Output Is Expanding

TOKYO, Nov. 10 (Reuters) .-The Economic Planning Agency reports industrial production in Japan is expanding satisfactorily, but warns against a sharp rise in wholecale prices.
It said in a monthly report that output of electric machinery, petroleum products, and general machinery had been increasing particularly well, while deliveries ships, automobiles, electric machinery and paper/pulp have also been rising.

The agency noted signs of increased capital outlays for plant and equipment to meet no replacements and pollution control investments.

It pointed out that the wholesale price index rose by 0.5 percent in the first 10 days of October and by 0.2 percent in its second 10 days, after increases of 0.7 percent in August and 0.9 percent in September.

The agency also reported particularly sharp rises in the prices of hides and skins, raw wool, and imported timber, but the increase in steel prices has been levelling

The rise in wholesale prices has been due to a steady increase in domestic demand for construction and other work and higher

Higher Trade Surplus

Meanwhile, the Finance Ministry said its latest estimates showed Japan is likely to have a trade surplus of $8.2 billion during the current financial year ending March 31, 1973, compared with a surplus of $7.787 billion the last financial year.

Preliminary figures released by the Ministry of Trade and Industry show Japan's exports are running at more than 20 percent above a year ago. Export certifications during October totalled $2.64 billion, or 22.3 percent above $2.158 billion in October 1971.

Survey Expects 11% Increase Next Year

By Herbert Kushetz

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (NYT).

-A booming increase in capital spending is planned by U.S. business next year, indicating a strong economic outlook and an eventual rise in productivity in the manufacturing area, McGrawpublications said yesterday.

Releasing its annual estimate of capital spending plans, the business publisher reported that total of $98.6 billion, or 11 percent more than estimated 1972

Capital spending plans for 1974, it was said are expected to reach a level of $102.6 billion. Douglas Greenwald, chief economist of the publishing concern, pointed out that capital spending would be a stronger plus factor on the economic front next year than it had been in the previous six years.

The average increase in the last six years, he said, came to 6 percent, while the average in the last 16 years has been about 5

He said that on the basis of the preliminary survey for 1973 figure could be expected to rise by as much as 14.5 percent. The survey accounts for investment plans by companies putting more than 60 percent of all expendi-tures into plant and equipment improvements. The manufacturing sector, according to the survey, plans expenditures of $36 billion in 1973, a 14 percent increase over the 1972 level, Preliminary nlans for 1974 amount to $37.5 billion, up 4 percent from planned 1973 levels. TURIN, NOV. 10 (AP-DJ).-Fiat's board of directors decided today not to distribute an interim dividend this year. The director did not comment on whether or how the final dividend might be affected. In the preceding week, the money supply showed a 4.7 percent growth rate and the week before that, 5.4 percent. As recently as mid-September, it was expanding at a 9 percent rate.

For the credit markets, this slowing seemed an encouraging development. For one thing, a more moderate rate of money supply growth could mean a more sustainable economic expansion. For another, it gave the Fed some leeway for expansion when the Treasury steps up its borrowing later this year and early in 1978. #### Greater future income can be the goal of a $5,000 portfolio placed under management now

If the capital you have today is to grow in the future toward more income, or for education, travel, leisure, retirement, it must be kept working continually to achieve your goals. Yet you may feel that you are actually losing ground due to inflation, taxes or lack of time for investment decisions.

To help solve this problem, clients in 64 countries have turned to The Danforth Associates Investment Management. It has, we believe, proved especially efficient in providing continuing capital growth supervision for portfolios starting with from $5,000 to $50,000 - on behalf of people who recognize and can share the risks and rewards of common stock investments. The cost is modest, as low as $100 per year. For a complimentary copy of a 42-page report describing this tested plan, its complete 15-year "performance record," and how it may help you now, simply write Dept. V-93.

Little Economic Effect Seen In Nixon's Victory, Peace

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP-DJ).—Though Richard Nixon's re-election and a probable cease-fire in Vietnam are major developments in U.S. history, neither is likely to speed—or slow—the pace of business expansion, business economists here say. They expect the economy to continue to grow at the steady, but relatively cautious, rate of recent months.
With a Republican as president and Democrats in control of Congress, there is little likelihood of any legislation that would cause the country to lurch in one direction or another. Even if President Nixon wants major changes in his second term, and even if he can get them enacted, it would be some time before the economy would be affected.

The economy has a lot of inertia, says Leif H. Olsen, senior vice-president and economist of First National City Bank. "It takes up to two years for any president to make important shifts in the economy's direction."

As for Vietnam pence, "the postwar readjustment really began several years ago," comments Alan Greenspan, presi-dent of Townsend-Greenspan & Co. "The settlement may help to bold down defense spending, but the physical impact on the economy will be almost nil." Spending Cuts Expected

Although the President may find it impossible to hold government spending to his $250-billion target for the current iscal year, most private economists are convinced he will press his efforts to trim outlays. Some evidence of spending re-straint could belp to lessen inflationary expectations, and the ending of an unpopular war is almost cure to improve public confidence—and perhaps to open up consumers' buiging

The prospect of a rise in public confidence, bowever, is not causing economists to roise their forecasts of business gains in 1973; it is merely increasing their conviction that their earlier optimistic predictions will prove to be correct.

On the average, business economists think the gross national product, in terms of 1958 dollars, will grow close to 8 percent in 1973, almost as rapidly as it is growing this year. Estimates of the rate of price inflation next year range from

TROUSERED APES By Duncan Williams. Arlington House. 160 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Henry Pleasants

WHEN Duncan Williams delivas a paper to a group of universi- in his emotional extremism ty teachers, he was accosted afterwards by a young woman of fashionably liberal views who said to him, in all seriousness: "You're advocating censorship, you shouldn't be allowed to publish

The pronouncement offers a serviceable example of what the author refers to elsewhere as "a form of intellectual totalitarianism" and which others have termed "approved bigotry." Nowhere in the book, in fact, does Williams, Welsh-born professor of English at Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va., advocate censorship; but he does argue, eloquently and bravely, for a re-examination of the writer's role in society, for a re-assessment of his social responsibilities, and for a sober review of the criteria by which his performance is to be

What disturbs him is not so much the attitude itself, which is hardly novel, or the unpleasantness which it breeds and cultivates, as its current pervasiveness. the absence of any opposing cultural or aesthetic philosophy, As Peregrine Worsthorne, reviewing "Trousered Apes" for the London Sunday Telegraph when it appeared in Great Britain a few months ago, observed:

"This dark and gloomy view has always played a part in the artistic creation; but hitherto it has been powerfully balanced by the Christian and classical tradition dwelling on much more hopeful themes, on man's potentiality for good, on the blessings of order, on the need for restraint, on good manners and civility ... Writers and artists occupied a far less centrally in-fluential role in the life of so-ciety as a whole. Today, however, they are the only moral mentors, and if they choose to lead us into the desert of nihilism or the quagmire of sensuality, there are no counterpressures to hold us vailing

Civilization, Prof. Williams writes, "bas been a heart-breakingly slow process. It has been accomplished through man's gradual realization that in bodily functions—eating, drinking, cop-ulating, excreting—he differs little from the ape. It was his reasoning ability, his self-control, his 'affectations,' which raised him to the dignity of Homo sapiens. The contemporaessarily repressive concepts may betoken an inevitable, cyclical fall of man."

While he identifies Jimmy Porter, the anti-hero of John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger." the contemporary prototype of his "trousered ape," he deals at greater length with Raskolnikov, the murderer of Dostoevki's "Crime and Punishment," whom he writes: "In his peru ered a chapter of this book blend of sadism and masoch is still an easily recognize literary and social phenomene Prof. Williams even coins

Briscoe, 29, sparred three light rounds yesterday with Antonio Aguilar, South American middleweight champion. "He has heavy hands, a dangerous right hook to the body in close, but I think Carlos will take him." Aguilar said. Briscoe's handler, Quincell Mc-Series and the playoff series were Call, said Briscoe weighed 159 1:2 pounds yesterday and will make

Britain Braced For Australia In Rugby Final

LYONS, Nov. 10 (UPI). Great Britain does not expect an easy game when it meets Australia in the final of the Rugby League World Cup in Lyons tomorrow, according to trainer Jim Challinor.

Challinor said today: "If there is one thing we do not believe, it is that the match will be easy. The Australians . . . are in devastating form and the final should be spectacular."

At the same time, Challing said, "Our team too has progressed. It is in top physical condition and will go out well armed for the battle."

Coach Grant Is 'Sure' NFL Lions Have Viking Defensive Playbook

BLOOMINGTON, Minn., Nov. 10 (AP).—The Minnesota Vikings of the National Pootball League started practice this week minus one defensive playbook, which they believe is in the hands of the Detroit Lions.

"I'm sure they've got our playbook," coach Bud Grant said, without concern, as the Vikings began preparing for Sunday's game in Minnesota against the Lions.

Defensive back Al Randolph was signed by the Vikings and placed on the taxi squad last week. When Randolph asked if he was going to be activated for last Sunday's game against New Orleans, Grant would not give any assurance.

Randolph left Minnesota without notice and turned up in a Detroit uniform last Sunday against the Bears. The Vikings said that Randolph had signed a contract for 1973, so it is conceivable that he could be in the Vikings' training camp next summer. Minnesots general manager Jim Finks said, "There's nothing illegal about him going to Detroit."

Finks called the departure "an odd turn of events. We had no forewarning. Detroit never notified us; Randolph never told us, and he never turned in his playbook."

Giants' Orduna Is Grateful He's Finally Off the Bench

By Murray Chass

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (NYT) .--The rain that pelted Yankee Stadium yesterday hampered the Giants on their second day of preparations for the important game in Washington Sunday, but to Joe Orduna even the raindrops look like roses these days.

Orduna, who sat, ldly and miserably, with the San Francisco 49ers last season, will make his first start as a pro against the Redskins, playing in place of Charlie Evans, who broke a leg last Sunday.

"It was very bad not playing sll last year," said the rookle back, whom the Giants picked up on waivers in September. "But I've enjoyed playing on the spe-cial teams with the Giants. I've been having s lot of fun. "I didn't expect to get in the game last Sunday and it was quite a shock to realize I was in there. Now I feel a lot of pressure, knowing I'm starting. I don't want to disappoint my teammates."

On the contrary, Orduna (Or-DUNE-ya) may surprise the Red-skins. Washington has George Allen and Larry Brown, but Orduna has something going for him, too.

"I'm very sad at the loss of Evans because he's been doing such a good job," said the 6-foot 195-pound back, who was a teammate of Larry Jacobson, the Giants rookie defensive tackle. at Nebraska. 'But for me, the God whom I love has been very faith-People have told me the Lord would work things out and now I feel that he has ordered it for me at this time.

Alabama Favored to Remove LSU From Undefeated Ranks

By Gordon S. White Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (NYT) -- in 1949, suffered his only losing Louisiana State University hasn't cempaign with the Orange that year. But if Army, coming on lost a football game since dropping a 14-7 decision to Alabama strong, beats Syracuse tomorrow the Orange will have their first losing season in 23 years and last year. As Nebraska, Tennessee, Mississippi and others were heaten this fall, LSU emerged as second under Schwartzwalder. the team with the longest major college winning streak, which stands at II

But once again the Tigers go up against Alabama with predicns that the Crimson Tide, also undefeated this season, will win this big Southeastern Conference game tomorrow.

For one thing, the game is to be played at Legion Field in Birmingham, Alabama's second home and the place where LSU has defeated Alabama only once in the past. For another, Alabama has trounced most of its eight opponents this fall while LSU has had some problems such as heating Mississippi on the last play of the game last week.

No matter how the teams got this far, they reached a point of confrontation with perfect records and an Orange Bowl bid waiting for the winner of the game. Alabama's wishbone has been a crusher this year so that Bear Bryant's big and quick Alabamans are the fifth highest scoring team in the land. By contrast, Alabama's big and quick defense ranks eighth in the nation in defense against scoring while About the only thing not involved in this game is that unofficial ranking of No. 1 in the land such as was the case in the Oklahoma-Nebraska game a year ago. But it is possible that Alabama, now third, or LSU, now sixth could eventually finish No. 1 this season. Earlier temorrow afternoon, the Ohio State-Michigan State game gets under way at East Lansing, Mich. The Buckeyes take their undefeated team against the Spartans, whose coach, Duffy Daugherty, is finishing out his last season. He announced his resignation last Priday and Michigen State best Purdue last Sat-

Johnny Rao has lunch on the house, a twice weekly privilege for those with at least 50 years of membership in the American Legion Post No. 1, Paris.

A Soldier Remembers The First Armistice Day

PARIS, Nov. 10 (IET).—That's where Johnny Rao got gas-sed," the lanky old man said, with a proof grin that seemed broader because most of his bottom teeth are missing. "In the Argonne Forest, two months before the Armistice."

The aged ex-doughboy was chatting with a visitor at the American Legion's Post No. I who had asked him about that other Armistice Day, the first one, 54 years ago. Mr. Rao had come to the club to have lunch on the house-a twice-weekly privilege for those with at least 50 years of membership.

Not, mind you, that Johnny Rao couldn't buy his own lunch if he felt like it. Married since 1919 to the former Raymonds Lachambre of Orleans, whom he met when he was a 23-year-old sergeant in the American Expeditionary Force, he has lived in France in comfortable retirement since 1947. The Raos have a place in Orléans and another in Sartrouville, where Johnny passes the time growing grapes, peaches, and other garden produce suitable for transmutation into alcohol. The Racs. in short, are feeling oo particular pain, and Johnny's U.S. Army pension-for a 60 percent disability-is icing on the care. "I had to stop driving my car a little while back, after I had my first attack," he said. "No more car trips to Orléans... What kind of attack? Heart, brought on by the asthma from which he coughs sporadically, which in turn was induced by the gas. Even so, he said, be bas spent no more than "six or seven months" in hospitals in the last half-century for treatment of iliness connected with the war. A good-natured old gaffer with sharp eyes and a lively sense of humor, he has clearly retained all of his huttons—a testimonial to the preservative quality of German mustard gas.

A New York City native, he enlisted in the Army in 1916the old Army, which goes hack further even than John Wayne. They put him in the 9th Cavalry, gave him a horse and a Boy Scout hat and sent him down to the Mexican border to help track down Pancho Villa (Rao calls him "Panko") and his bandit army. They didn't find him, and eventually he and his commander, Gen. John J. Pershing, were urgently needed elsewhere as the United States entered World War I.

"They made me a drill sergeant," he said, "trainin' them new recruits. Then they shipped us overseas-to Liverpool then to Brightoo, and across the Channel to Disppe. They divided us up into squads and assigned us to British outlits on the Somme we were with a bunch of Scotchmen, wearin' them kills-and we were supposed to find out what kind of war this was over here, because it wasn't like the one in Texas.

Well, let's see, That was in July, 1917, I guess. Toward the end of 1917 we had our own front, called the Argonne, in the Vosges Mountains, and our boys were comin' over by the thousands. They had no trainin' to speak of. They gave them what they called 'training fire,' in the third line of tranches. The Argonne-St. Mihiel sector-we lost a lot of men there ...

Then, in 1918, we were reorganized into regular divisions, from 1 to 91. Ours was the Alsace-Lorraine Division, After that came the second Argonne battle-we had orders to break out, we hit Toul, we made the breakthrough, and that's when I got

they said. Well, you can go back now.' But they didn't send me to the front again. They made me an electrician—I done electrical work before the war—and they sent me to general headquarters at Neuchatel There'd be an attack, and I'd throw the switch on and off."

He grinned, across a chasm of 50-odd years, and drank some orange juice. "That's how we got the news first on November 11—the news of the Armistice. We'd been expecting it. A dispatch rider came up, on an Indian motorcycle... We had champagne coming out of our gills. We were a little ossified for two days, three days ... There was no saluting, no nothing. You could talk to a general just like I'm talkin' to you."

The war over, Johnny Rao married his French sweetheart and settled down in Paris. He was a plano player..."taught my-self, but I can read music: I sort of change it around, though". —and he met Maurice Chevaller. The ex-doughboy spent two years playing plane for Ohevalier ["20 france a night, in gold; a franc then would buy you a dozen eggs, bread and butter and a bottle of wine] and then returned to the States with his bride. He remained there until after the end of World War II. playing ragtime piano in New York, Chicago, Palm Beach.

"And that reminds me," he said with some heat to an official of the club who was listening in. "I'm a Legionnaire Pm supposed to be at that piano [meaning the one in the clubroom] not a Frenchman. "

It was hard to tell exactly how much of a grievance this was, Anyway, the Legion will help to make amends in a cere-mony here tomorrow afternoon, when it will award a gold medal to Johnny Rao and about a dozen other American veterans of World War I. The old man finished his second hamburger and turned his attention to the dessert: ice eream and layer cake, Someone said in a respectful undertone that Rao usually finished off these meals with a pizza.

Sweden's King Gustav Celebrating His 90th

King Gustav VI Adolf of Sweden, the world's oldest reign-ing monarch, celebrates his 80th birthday Saturday.

The tall, bespectacled king had wanted to celebrate his birthday quietly. But others turned it into marathon 14-hour program filled with royal splendor.

Fremier Olof Falme, whose Social Democratic party has had the abolition of the monarchy in their party program since it was founded, heads the committee organizing the birthday celebrations and the premier is the principal speaker for the celebra-

All opinion polls in recent years have shown that the eight million Swedes, although radical in many other ways, are firmly royalistic. Thus the rolling Social Democrats have never seriously raised the issue of turning Sweden into a republic.

The king, who is still agile both in body and mind in spite of his age, will be at the center of brations, beginning at 9 a.m. with the raising of the flag over the royal palace to the blares of trumpets and ending at 11 pm. when the curtain falls on a special gala performance at the royal opera.

Natalia Makarova, the Soviet ballerina who defected to the West two years ago, plans to live in Europe. The 31-year-old ballerina flew into London's Heathrow Airport after living in the United States for two years and said, "I would really prefer to live on this side of the Atlantic." She is in Britain to dance in "Les Sylphides" and "Don Quixote" at Covent Garden on Wednesday. She will live in a hotel before looking for a house or apartment. "I have not yet decided where to live," Miss Makarova said.

The Rev. Tom Chipper, Baptist minister in the English village of Isleham, has banned baptisms in the nearby River Lark because of pollution. It had been a centuryold tradition but, the Rev. Chipper said, "nowadays anyone who was haptized came out smelling."
